

Become a TAEN Media Case Study

We are frequently asked by the media to give them 'case studies' of named individuals experiencing problems - or achieving successes - in the field of age and employment. These make a vital difference to all our efforts to create better understanding of the issues, as people can relate to individual stories and experiences. By becoming a media case study you will be strengthening TAEN's campaigning effort to secure a fairer deal for mature workers.

We never give the media people's telephone numbers or other contact details without first getting in touch with them first to ask if they are willing to be interviewed. We do this on each occasion a member of the media requests to talk to a case study.

As a case study you will receive updates on national and local developments from us and access to our helpdesk.
